ABSTRACT

The library collection of Laubach Literacy's organizational papers and reading files, as well as Dr. Frank C. Laubach's papers, are described in this catalogue. The catalogue begins with a brief biography of Frank C. Laubach (1884-1970), then lists Dr. Laubach's forty books by publication date and four books about Dr. Laubach. In addition, the background and current activities of Laubach Literacy, Inc., are reviewed. The major portion of the document is devoted to a description of Dr. Laubach's papers which includes all material up until 1955, when he founded Laubach Literacy, Inc., and from 1955 to his death. The contents of 328 boxes are described. The contents are sorted into the following categories: correspondence, trustee meeting reports, administrative papers, financial papers, domestic project materials, overseas project materials, foreign language materials, manuscripts and articles, organization/meeting materials, miscellaneous documents, and photography. Also, ninety-nine kinescopes which form the streamlined reading series are annotated. (CSS)

THE ARCHIVES OF CONTINUING EDUCATION

IN SYRACUSE UNIVERSITY LIBRARIES

For several years Syracuse University has been collecting, processing and disseminating papers and other materials relating to continuing education. Included in the Archives of Continuing Education are contributions from organizations and associations, as well as from individuals of national and international renown.

Syracuse University is indeed grateful to have received the personal papers of Dr. Frank C. Laubach and the organizational documents of Laubach Literacy, Inc.

It is also noted with appreciation that a significant part of the expense of processing the collection was met by contributions from Laubach Literacy, from Mrs. Effa Laubach, and from her son and daughter-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Robert S. Laubach.

Dr. Laubach's mission was to the entire world. It is our hope that the collection will continue to generate interest among scholars in adult literacy and continuing education from around the world. Inquiries may be addressed to the Libraries of Syracuse University.

FRANK C. LAUBACH

Dr. Frank C. Laubach, founder of the "Each One Teach One" literacy teaching method, was a missionary, educator, and author of more than 40 books. He was credited with teaching 60 to 100 million people to read.

TIME magazine referred to him as founder of a world-wide literacy drive. Norman Vincent Peale in LOOK called Laubach one of the five greatest men in the world. NEWSWEEK featured him as "one of the grand men of the missionary world." Lowell Thomas called him "the foremost teacher of our times."

Dr. Laubach was born in Benton, Pennsylvania, on September 2, 1884. He was educated at Bloomsburg State College, Pennsylvania (1901); Perkiomen Prep School (1905);

Princeton University (B.A., 1909); Union Theological Seminary, New York (1913); and at Columbia University (M.A., 1912; [illegible]D., 1915).

He was married to Effa Seely on May 15, 1912. In 1915, they went to the Philippines as Congregational missionaries with the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions. He was a minister at Cagayan, and taught at Union Theological Seminary in Manila.

In 1930, he began literacy work on the island of Mindanao and developed an alphabet for the Maranaws in their own Maranaw language. This was the start of the famous "Each One Teach One" concept, which encourages adults taught by the system to volunteer to teach others to read.

From 1930 to 1970, Dr. Laubach traveled to 103 countries developing literacy primers in 312 languages. He and his literacy teams worked with missions, private agencies, governments, U. S. Agency for International Development, the Peace Corps, and UNESCO.

In 1935, he organized the World Literacy Committee. In 1941, he was one of the founders of the Committee on World Literacy and Christian Literature (now Intermedia) of the National Council of Churches. He worked with this organization until his retirement in 1954 at age 70.

Dr. Laubach gave impetus to the opening of literacy and journalism courses at Hartford School of Missions, Syracuse University, Asbury College, Baylor University, University of California, and in more than 20 other centers in the U. S.

In 1955, he founded Laubach Literacy, Inc., a non-profit literacy organization with headquarters at 1011 Harrison Street, Syracuse, New York 13210.

Dr. Laubach's more than thirty books were concerned with a variety of subjects, including the Philippines, prayer and spiritual life, challenges to world literacy and to international technical assistance, and materials to teach adults to read. He developed literacy primers in 312 languages, which are catalogued in the collection. His books, in chronological order, are:

by David E. Mason

EACH ONE TEACH ONE,
by Marjorie Medary

CHAMPION OF THE SILENT BILLION,
by Helen M. Roberts

FRANK C. LAUBACH, TEACHER OF MILLIONS,
by David E. Mason

His work has been taught to Sunday School children in the curriculum of the Methodist, Lutheran, and other denominations. Nearly all the religious and major magazines including TOGETHER, THE LUTHERAN STANDARD, CHRISTIAN HERALD, TIME, LOOK, NEWSWEEK, READER'S DIGEST, COLLIER'S and SATURDAY EVENING POST have run articles about "Mr. Literacy."

He received honorary degrees from Princeton, Columbia, Syracuse, and Temple Universities, and Lafayette, Wooster, Muskingam, Marietta, Findlay, and Baldwin-Wallace Colleges.

Dr. and Mrs. Laubach have one son, Robert, who is president of Laubach Literacy, Inc. Dr. Frank Laubach died June 11, 1970, at the age of 85. Mrs. Effa Laubach died March 29, 1973, at the age of 90. They are buried beside their parents in the family plot at Benton, Pennsylvania. This rural farming community, which had sent them to the four corners of the earth, welcomed them home to rest in peace.

LAUBACH LITERACY, INC.

Laubach Literacy, Inc., was incorporated in 1955. Its founder was Frank C. Laubach who, in years previous to that date had pioneered in "each one teach one" in many parts of the world.

Dr. Frank Laubach was in great demand as an "apostle to the illiterates;" he and his associates developed literacy materials in 103 countries and 312 languages. His success was predicated on a faith in the potential of each individual and a profound compassion for members of the "silent billion," the illiterate third of the world.

Grown men and women can learn to read, Dr. Laubach knew, and he challenged everyone with a sense of compassion for his fellowman to be trained as a literacy tutor.

Laubach Literacy, Inc., continues his work in his spirit of compassion. The "secret" of success lies in a combination of:

1. A volunteer Each One Teach One program strategy.

2. Reading primers constructed for use by anyone who can read--not just trained teachers.

3. Easy-to-read books and periodicals to help the new reader solve his problems while he is developing his ability to read standard publications.

4. A deep sense of the worth and dignity of each learner, which makes the learner a full participant in the process and not just an object of the program.

Literacy projects in eight developing countries receive funds and program assistance from Laubach Literacy. Many more countries receive information or training through Laubach Literacy.

Sponsored programs are in Afghanistan, Brazil, Colombia, India, Jordan/Israel (West Bank area), Mexico, Panama, and Rhodesia. In most countries there is close cooperation with existing agencies so that Laubach Literacy resources are concentrated on the educational problem, and organizational expense is minimized.

Recent polls and census data concur that more than 20 million Americans are functionally illiterate--that is, they cannot read well enough to cope with ordinary reading matter which is vital to their work and living in our society.

In 1967, Laubach Literacy formed the National Affiliation for Literacy Advance (NALA), to provide training and back-up services to volunteers. More than 14,000 active literacy tutors are now serving more than 20,000 learners in 47 states.

A recent nationwide survey indicated that, on the average, Laubach students improved their reading by three-fourths of a school year in 30 hours of tutoring.

In every country, Laubach materials are created to meet the special needs of the learners. In the U. S. A., for example, the New Readers Press division of Laubach Literacy publishes the most extensive series of teaching and easy-to-read materials.

The five-book New Streamlined English Series with teacher guides and many helps, enables tutors to present reading skills in controlled sequence. A wide selection of follow-up readers is published on such topics as family life, health and drugs, jobs and work, religion, social studies and history, and consumer skills. News For You, a weekly newspaper for new readers, is published in two easy-to-read levels.

The international headquarters of Laubach Literacy have been at Syracuse University since 1963. Laubach Literacy and the University have enjoyed a friendly relationship since the mid-1950's. Laubach Literacy is instrumental in promoting a graduate sequence in the S. I. Newhouse School of Public Communications known as literacy communications. Former students in this sequence are now serving in more than forty countries in developing literacy programs or publishing literature for new literates.

Laubach Literacy cooperates with or is recognized by many private and governmental organizations. For examples, Laubach Literacy is:

- A member, Advisory Committee on Voluntary Foreign Aid, and a recipient of commendation by the U. S. State Department, Agency for International Development.
- A partner in the "Right to Read," U. S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Office of Education.
- A recipient of honorable mention of the 1971 UNESCO literacy prize for its work in the U. S. A.

THE LAUBACH COLLECTION

From 1896 to the Present

328 boxes, 10 cartons of films
6 scrapbooks and ledgers

The Laubach Collection, while containing the organizational papers of Laubach Literacy, Inc., in addition features the papers of Dr. Frank C. Laubach (1884-1970), its founder. Dr. Laubach's papers include all the material up until 1955, when he founded Laubach Literacy, Inc., and from 1955 up to his death. Also in the Laubach Collection is a set of 99 Streamlined Reading films in good to excellent condition. The Laubach Collection will be a continually growing one, as the records created by Laubach Literacy, Inc., are collected and processed.

Correspondence, the first major group of the Laubach Collection, has been divided into four subgroups: Frank Laubach, General, Specific Files, and Foreign, General.

Frank Laubach's correspondence was placed under correspondence, so that all correspondence material could be found in one place. Dr. Laubach's own correspondence dates considerably earlier than the other sub-groups.

General Correspondence contains organizational correspondence of a varied nature, covering the broad range of questions concerning Laubach Literacy, Inc.

Specific Files contains the correspondence of specific individuals and projects. Foreign, General Correspondence pertains to foreign correspondence of such a general nature that it has no specific file.

The Frank C. Laubach papers consist of the great variety of material accumulated over his life time; biographical material; essays, articles and speeches; scrapbooks and diaries, manuscripts dated before 1955. The notes, memorabilia and data collected during Dr. Laubach's missionary career in the Philippines are of particular philosophical and historical interest. The papers of his wife, Effa Seely Laubach (1882-1973), follow those of Dr. Laubach.

Trustees' material consists of agenda, meetings, minutes of meetings and decisions concerning the Board of Trustees of Laubach Literacy, Inc.

The Administrative Papers are divided into two subgroups. Administrative Papers and Administrative Papers--Correspondence. The first group consists of major materials regarding organizational policy, contracts and personnel information. The correspondence is all inter-office memoranda within and from Laubach Literacy, Inc.

Financial Papers include all budgets, auditor's reports, bank statements and corporate assessments for the years 1955-1970 (the collection will be added to periodically).

Projects, Domestic consist of all literacy programs, projects, and training workshops sponsored by Laubach Literacy in the United States. Included is NALA (National Affiliation for Literacy Advance) material, and the papers and records of state and local literacy organizations.

Projects, Overseas include all material related to literacy projects abroad, such as U. S. Government (AID, Peace Corps) contracts, proposals, and support; and monthly reports from Laubach staff members located in other countries.

Languages contain all the primers and reading materials developed or used by Laubach in any language. More than 300 languages are represented.

Manuscripts and Articles contain the manuscripts developed at Laubach Literacy, Inc., from 1955 to 1969. This group also holds any other manuscripts and articles prepared by Laubach staff members or interested persons.

The Organizations and Meetings group contains the records and papers of organizations and conferences and meetings not directly sponsored by Laubach Literacy, but of interest to Laubach staff members or Trustees.

Miscellaneous holds over six boxes of newspaper clippings collected at Laubach Literacy, and also includes unclassified newsletters and pamphlets.

The Photographs group contains photographs from all Laubach projects, both domestic and overseas, and are filed by geographical location. Also included are photographs of the Laubach family.

The 99 Streamlined Reading films have all been viewed and individually assessed for their physical condition. A list of these films is found at the back of this paper.

The Laubach Collection is a valuable research tool for any student of literacy in America, or of world literacy. It traces the development of literacy teaching from the early 1920's, at the beginning of Dr. Laubach's missionary career with the Moro tribe in the Philippines, and reaches into the present efforts of Laubach Literacy, Inc., to deal with illiteracy on a worldwide scale.
